

Today, many people have started using the AI technology in their daily lives. As a result, there are now many translation software. Some hospitals offer translation software between patients and doctors, and by doing so they help people to communicate more easily. AI devices will be more common in the future.

