

Learning about Internet

These days, many people are paying more attention to Internet safety. Because of this, companies around the world are trying to let people know more about Internet security. Many of these companies use their websites to provide information about how to protect the computer. People check such information, and by doing so they learn more about the Internet they use.

Your story should begin with this sentence: One day, Naoki was talking to his grandfather in the living room.

