

Local Foods in Japan

There are many kinds of local foods in Japan. Large cities, small towns, and villages usually have their own local foods. Many of these foods are sold at their local restaurants. Local restaurants often offer traditional food culture to visitors, so they are popular with foreign tourists. Local foods are attracting more and more attention.

